FEMALE OFFICER SURVIVAL COURSE
Tuition $575.00

Designed by female law enforcement officers for female law enforcement officers, the goal of this course is to impart the skills and knowledge required to survive a fight of your life. Students will develop improved firearms accuracy, mental preparation and confidence through this challenging training education concept.

Course Overview

The program provides and opportunity to train under a comfortable learning environment at the range, in the gym, as well as in the classroom. The course will provide each student a personalized assessment of their particular skill sets and identify any areas that students may need to focus on to continue to the development of new skill sets. It's designed to give female officers the skills to engage lethal threatening situations with confidence.

Subjects included, but are not limited to:

- Enhance Shooter's basic firearms techniques
- Develop advanced gun-fighting skills
- Employ Defensive Tactics specific to the female officer
- Improve tactical decision making skills
- Utilize practical application through Scenario Based Training (SBT)

The lead instructor for this course is Dorcia Meador

Brief Bio: Dorcia is a 31 year veteran of the Fort Worth Police Department and has instructed firearms of over 24 years. She is considered by many to be one of the best female shooters in the Country. She is a 4-time women's NRA's champion honors. She also holds 5 national records for police pistol combat competitions, 5 in the 1500 PPC revolver and 4 national records in Police Pistol Combat semi-auto.

Dorcia will be joined by Lt. Amy Foster of the Vancouver Police Department, who is a recognized expert in ground and hand to hand fighting as well as Blenda Selvey of the Fort Worth PD, who is an accomplished tactical instructor in her own right.
